Multidetector computed tomography urography in children with urinary tract abnormalities. The evaluation of the pediatric patient with a urinary tract abnormality often includes a multidetector computed tomography (CT) urography (MDCTU) and a conventional urography (CU). To evaluate MDCTU in the evaluation of children with urinary tract abnormalities. Twenty-eight patients between 1.5 and 13 years of age were evaluated with MDCTU and CU. After intravenous administration of iodine contrast medium, MDCTU was obtained with a 16-channel multidetector CT (Revolution, GE Healthcare, Milwaukee, WI, USA) and CU was obtained with an abdominal 18-channel multidetector CT (Aquilion One, Toshiba Medical Systems, Tokyo, Japan). Diagnostic accuracy was evaluated in the detection of anatomical abnormalities in the pelvis and kidneys. Two observers performed the blinded review of all the images. MDCTU and CU provided comparable diagnostic accuracy for the detection of anatomical abnormalities in the renal pelvis, calyces, ureters, bladder, and prostate. MDCTU provided higher accuracy in the detection of pelvic abnormalities than CU (100% and 72%, respectively) and better delineation of the renal collecting system (100% and 81%). MDCTU is more accurate than CU in the evaluation of children with urinary tract abnormalities and more efficient in the evaluation of abnormalities.
